SIR! NO SIR!

The suppressed story of the G.I. Movement to end the War in Vietnam

In the 1960's an anti-war movement emerged that altered the course of history. It didn't take place on college campuses, but in barracks, aircraft carriers, army stockades, navy brigs & in the towns that surround military bases. It spread through the battlefields of Vietnam & was a movement no one expected. Hundreds went to prison & thousands into exile. By 1971 the movement, in words of one colonel, had infested the entire armed service.
